SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — At least 20 armed opponents of Haitian President Jean Claude Duvalier have landed in northeast Haiti, Dominican sources who are usually well informed on Haitian affairs reported Tuesday night.

the country Socialist.
A radio station controlled by the junta said in a broadcast monitored in Argentina that "extremist groups continue to resist the action of the armed forces in downtown Santiago."
The terse broadcast gave no idea of the scale of the resistance or whether Chileans were mounting opposition to the military in other parts of the country.
Allende's ouster on Tuesday followed weeks of unrest created by the Marxist president's refusal to come to terms with the country's moderate and conservative majority and his inability to end strikes, soaring inflation and economic stagnation in the factories and on the farms.

Communications between Chile and the outside world were cut off shortly after the coup began. They reopened for a few hours in the evening, then were broken again with no indication when they would again be operating.
More than 100 leftists were reported arrested in Santiago and Valparaiso, the seaport northwest of Santiago where naval units began the revolt.
The junta issued a list of 68 prominent Socialist and Communist leaders who were ordered to appear at the defense ministry or face arrest. Among those named were Foreign Minister Carlos Altamirano and the president's sister Laura, a member of Congress.

The junta also ordered all foreigners "in the country in irregular or illegal situations" to report to the police. This apparently referred to the estimated 2,000 left-wing terrorists or subversives from Uruguay and Brazil given asylum in Chile by Allende.
Tanks, ground troops and two air force jets attacked the presidential palace in Santiago just before noon Tuesday after Allende refused an ultimatum to resign that was issued by the heads of the army navy, air force and national police. The palace was set afire, but the president's guard did not surrender until nearly 2:30 p.m.
A army helicopter strafed several nearby government buildings from which snipers were firing on the troops around the palace, but by mid-afternoon only scattered pockets of resistance were reported.
First reports said the 65-year-old president had surrendered, but later police sources reported he had committed suicide. This was confirmed by Police Prefect Rene Carrasco, and Chilean newsmen who accompanied the troops into the burning palace said the body was hunched up on a blood-covered sofa in the main salon on the second floor, apparently shot in the head.
Carrasco said Allende's press adviser, Augusto Olivares, also had killed himself near the end of the fight.
Allende had said in a statement broadcast as the air-

Urge More State Rule Over Colleges

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A state commission is toying with the idea of recommending that the Constitution be amended to give the state Board of Education more power to coordinate higher education in Michigan.
The governor's commission on higher education is examining Michigan's need to coordinate its higher education resources. And it is worried about the relative lack of power of any state agency—including the board of education—to overcome the autonomy of Michigan's colleges and universities and their reluctance to cooperate.

The commission is expected to discuss today at least two proposals to give the state Board of Education more power to compel more coordination to provide more even education service.
While details have not been discussed, one proposal would entail a constitutional revision to give the board regulatory powers in coordinating higher education while maintaining "institutional autonomy." It also might include the appointment, instead of election, of the state board, the superintendent of public instruction, and the

State Department Weighs Recognition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department began weighing today the sensitive question of recognition of the new military junta in Chile that has ousted the regime of leftist President Salvador Allende.
Diplomatic observers said they expected Washington, anticipating charges that it was responsible for the coup, would allow a decent interval before conferring recognition to avoid too close an initial identification with the fledgling junta.
But the official view here was that the future long-term relationship between Washington and Santiago will be based largely on how the new government goes about building a political and social consensus on which to build an orderly economic reconstruction program.
Shortly after Allende took office, U.S. bilateral lending to Chile dried up as did financial assistance from the World Bank and the Interamerican Development Bank, both of which are under heavy American influence.

The uncompensated nationalization of U.S. copper mining interests was listed as a reason for the assistance cutoff, but Chile also had developed a reputation for inept economic management.
One official said that the economic situation under Allende was such that even the Soviet Union declined to provide more than token assistance. Chile's inflation rate over the

Nixon Asks Congress To Help Draft Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — In yet another move toward a closer working relationship with Congress, the Nixon administration has invited key members of Congress to help draft the federal budget.
Budget Director Roy L. Ash proposed Tuesday a series of meetings with Senate leaders to get "the congressional sense of priorities" for next year's budget.
"Our thought is that in the process of formulating the budget it would be mutually advantageous to obtain the congressional sense of priorities for next year," Ash said.
The offer was quickly accepted at a meeting of Senate Democratic leaders and committee chairmen. At the same meeting, a "must list" of legislation for the remainder of the year was drafted. The list was on the agenda for today's breakfast meeting between Senate and House Democratic leaders.

The Ash proposal was thought to have been made to House leaders also, but this could not be immediately confirmed.
The offer was said to be the first time administration representatives have asked for budget advice from groups of congressmen prior to formal submission of the spending document for congressional approval.

Ash's proposal was the latest in a series of administration peace moves aimed at the Democratic-controlled Congress. Nixon met several times last week with congressional leaders. And, in Monday's State of the Union message, Nixon, while prodding Congress to act on his proposals, called for a spirit of cooperation between the executive and legislative branches.
The Democratic leaders also endorsed Tuesday an Oct. 15 target adjournment date, although most key congressional aides say a mid-November adjournment is more likely.
Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the "must list" of bills would be kept secret to maintain congressional "flexibility."

However, he disclosed that the Senate expects to take up the $20.4-billion military procurement authorization bill next week, after considering pension reform.
Ash proposed the budget meetings in a letter to Mansfield.
The meetings would include the chairman, ranking Republican, key staff members and possibly other committee members along with either Ash or Deputy Director Fred Malek, and the appropriate assistant director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Two Tier Market Blight

The basic function of a securities or a commodities exchange is to provide a quick, reasonably accurate measure of values and to create a source of funds for new business ventures and capital for established firms wanting to expand physically or in new directions.

The New York Stock Exchange, established in 1792, is the oldest of such groups in the U.S. and up until a few years ago it and its counterparts have discharged that obligation fairly well.

From time to time, insiders have rigged the markets to the distress of gullible, less knowledgeable people, but those fluctuations have been short in duration and their effect confined to a small circle.

Starting around 1968, however, a new influence has shown up.

It is called the two tier market.

Simply stated, it is the phenomenon of 40 to 50 so called glamor stocks being traded at mountain peak heights while a 1,000 or more corporate securities plod along in the valley.

It is the peculiarity of Polaroid's quotation being ranked twice that of Eastman Kodak and of Polaroid's earning power accredited to be 20 times that of Ford Motors. It is the question of Avon, the epitome of intangibles, being listed six times as secure as General Motors, the flagship among the tangibles.

This matter of putting the dessert before the meat and potatoes is not new.

The market players are no more immune to faddism than the devotees of Women's Wear Daily or the followers of new religions. Throughout its history the market has taken off on one variety of investment to the neglect of the entire field and downplayed others to the upgrading of the average performers.

Nowhere during these aberrations did the entire investment flow sprinkle one lawn and leave the surrounding acreage to parch.

Basically, this has been the situation in the stock market for the past five years.

The money managers for pension and other investment funds have been trading huge blocks of the glamor stocks between themselves and ignoring the vast majority of companies whose continued health is basic to the American economy.

Not all of this lopsided condition can be put upon the big investors.

The individual investor has not returned to the market since his burning in the 1968-69 drop. Interest rates approaching insane plateaus are giving bonds and bank certificates of deposit an edge rarely held against stocks. The government's lid on dividends, first actual and now moral, has contributed to the imbalance.

Substantially, however, it is the large money managers who are responsible for this questionable posture.

By all of them running separately yet simultaneously to a common purchasing ground they put themselves and more importantly, their clients on thin ice.

Many financial students fear any pressure on this high multiple market for the glamors will bear the entire market.

Very likely this would happen.

The next effect, though, could be a return to what should not have been permitted to come about in the first instance.

Money from a sell-off of the glamors could funnel back to the worthy stocks now languishing through blind neglect.

The individual investor would be encouraged to weigh once again the relative worth of buying into Ford, GMC, International Harvester or the other bellweathers which mean so much to the basic economy.

There is some muttering in Washington to legislate away the two tier market.

This is the last thing that is needed because what the government tosses overboard for a life boat frequently turns out to be an anchor.

If the people on Tier 2 who should by this time realize how they have boxed themselves and clients into an untenable position begin to ease off on their holdings and get back to fundamentals the only casualty will be the excess stuffing in the glamor dolls.

Elders Are Hypocritical About 'Pot Versus Booze'

Last weekend's jazz and rock festival at Ann Arbor — punctuated by wholesale smoking of "pot" among 12,000 young listeners — demonstrates a generation gap. The kids can't understand why marijuana's so bad when they see their elders continually getting bombed on alcohol. And they have at least three presidential commissions on their side saying marijuana should be legalized.

Further, claim the Mary Jane devotees, their smoke impairs faculties far less, and leaves no hangover.

This isn't to condone marijuana-smoking. But the "establishment" has to admit, there's a lot of hypocrisy in the elder generation's position on "pot" versus booze.

There's a timely article in the August-September issue of Natural History which points out that while the American establishment looks down on "pot", other cultures have been venerating marijuana for 5,000 years.

Richard E. Schultes tells how in an article entitled "Roots of Grass." He writes:

"Marijuana has been around for thousands of years and has earned deep respect in many different societies.... Cannabis has long been cultivated for five principal purposes: for hempen fibers; for its oil; for its achenes, or 'seeds,' which man has consumed as a food; for its narcotic properties; and as a therapeutic agent in folk medicine and modern pharmacopoeias.

"There is no way of knowing which use of Cannabis represents the earliest. Early man could hardly have missed seeing fibers exposed in naturally retted stems, and the production of hemp goes far back in the archeological record." "The medicinal value of hemp — often, of course, closely related to its psychoactive properties — is perhaps its most significant, and was possibly even its earliest, role in cultural history. The oldest known record of Cannabis as a medicine goes back 5,000 years to Shen Nung, who prescribed hemp for malaria, beriberi, constipation, rheumatic pains, absentmindedness, and female disorders.

"Early man experimented with all plant materials that he could chew. He could not have avoided discovering the intoxicating properties of Cannabis, for in his quest for the nutritious seeds and oil, he certainly ate the sticky tops of the plant, the most narcotic part. The euphoric, ecstatic, and hallucinatory aspects of the intoxication may have introduced him to an otherworldly plane from which emerged religious beliefs, perhaps even the concept of deity. The plant became accepted as a special gift of the gods, a sacred medium for communion with the spiritual world. And such it has remained in some cultures to the present."

Thousands of promenaders take part in the annual Mackinac Bridge Walk every Labor Day, National Geographic says. Participants in the popular excursion usually take from one to two hours to cross the five-mile span linking Michigan's Upper and Lower Peninsulas.

Terrorist Rises

In Chinese Party

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Reports from China following the Tenth Communist party congress indicate a man by the name of Chao Yun has gained added strength.

This could spell bad news for underlying U.S.-China relations (however much they might improve superficially) and for that era of peace and accord President Nixon and Dr. Henry Kissinger have been searching.

Chao Yun's alias is Kang Sheng. He is China's Lavrenti Beria, the executed master of Russia terrorism.

Kang has been, and continues to be so far as is known, top man in the Chinese secret police. He is active in and probably head of China's foreign espionage, subversion and dirty tricks operations abroad.

If, as some suspect, a strong Chinese espionage underground is to be built in the United States and Canada, Kang will direct it.

Kang first came to prominence as a Moscow-trained and paid Comintern agent. That is, after a lengthy study of Soviet police methods, espionage and underground party organization, Kang was for years a fulltime activist operating under Soviet direction in the underdeveloped countries, particularly China, attempting to build a U.S.S.R.-dominated Communist party.

Despite this Soviet connection, Kang has in the last number of years spearheaded Mao Tse-tung's anti-Soviet campaign. It has been Kang's job to infiltrate Communist parties worldwide, to smash those local Reds with Russian ties and thus to insure the victory of Peking-oriented factions of Communist parties in key countries around the world.

Kang reportedly has been quite successful in a number of nations. He is believed to have been directing the Indonesian Communist party at the height of its influence in the last years of the Sukarno regime. At present, he is believed to have good connections in East Germany, Belgium, Romania, Korea, Britain, Morocco, in some countries in Southeast and South Asia, Latin America and the Middle East.

Kang has sometimes been at the forefront of anti-U.S. activities. At one important East European conference in 1960, he fought strongly the prevailing view that coexistence with the United States was possible — insisting that the struggle against Washington should continue unabated.

Six-Year Dream

Lost By Nixon

WASHINGTON (KFS) — President Richard Nixon has not mentioned his dream — a six-year, single Presidential term — since he proposed it at Watergate reform four months ago.

In fact, the President has conspicuously failed to pursue any of the sweeping Federal election reforms he listed as "essential and urgent." He made one speech on the subject, tossed the ball to Congress by urging it to set up a study commission as the first step, and now seems to think he has done his duty in that direction.

In general, that is too bad, because if President Nixon has any realistic concept of the degree to which the Watergate crimes have crippled his office, he should be fired with determination to prevent anything similar from ruining his successors.

But the idea of the six-year single Presidential term can be left peacefully to rot without any loss.

It is not a new Nixon inspiration. Less than a year ago, a Senate Judiciary subcommittee held hearings on the concept, and a majority of the panel rejected it.

Those who favor the change see it as a means of taking the President out of politics and transforming him into a statesman. The theory is that a President unafraid of losing his job can concentrate upon perfecting his administration, which presumably he cannot do if he must pay attention to a horrid Congress and unstable public opinion.

Opponents contend that one term without the possibility of re-election condemns a President to being a lame duck for six years, without sufficient power to terrorize politically and thus get things done in government. They also argue that all partisan and special interest pressures are not necessarily bad and all Presidential thoughts not necessarily noble and pure.

Could the Watergate crime have occurred if Nixon had been running as an outsider for a single six-year term instead of trying for a second four-year term? Sure 'nuff, honey.

As White House powerbrokers, Nixon's advisers were able to subvert government agencies like the Central Intelligence Agency and the Internal Revenue Service for their political purposes, but John Mitchell and others testified that Nixon's victory was more important than any consideration of ethics or law. So it seems reasonable to expect that the same crowd outside the White House would have found other methods just as illegal to steal unfair advantage over any opponent.

It is not logical to believe that a Nixon with six more years would be more scrupulous with the truth and more willing to cooperate with the courts than the Nixon with three years to serve.

He said his two-year contract with NBC calls for a minimum of three shows a year after he joins NBC in September 1974.

Statistics Compiled By U.S. Census Bureau

BH Poverty Percentage Highest In State

BY BILL RUSH
Staff Writer

Benton Harbor has a higher percentage of families below the poverty level than any of nearly 200 other cities in Michigan, according to statistics published by the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

The statistics, compiled from the 1970 census, also show that Benton Harbor has the lowest percentage of high school graduates among residents more than 25 years old of any of the other cities in Michigan listed.

Of Benton Harbor's 3,670 families, 21.2 per cent were below the poverty level at the time of the census. The city with the second highest percentage of poor families was Muskegon Heights with 15.2 per cent. The majority of cities had fewer than 12 per cent of families below the poverty level.

Census Bureau information includes all cities in the state with more than 2,500 population. Data was also compiled on a county level.

The median income for families below the poverty level was about $2,000 for an average family of four in an urban setting. The poverty threshold used by the Census Bureau varies with the size and location of a family and the amount money available for food and housing.

Families below poverty level in other areas were: St. Joseph, 4.9 per cent; Niles, 8.9 per cent; and Detroit, 11.3 per cent. The poverty average for the state is 7 per cent and 10 per cent for the nation.

Berrien county had 9.5 per cent of its 42,046 families below the poverty level. Of Michigan's 83 counties, 43 had higher percentages of poverty. In Van Buren county 11.2 per cent were below poverty and 10.7 in Cass.

Only 28 per cent of males more than 25 years old had high school educations in Benton Harbor in 1970. The corresponding figure for women was 29.7 per cent. Most cities in the state had between 40 and 80 per cent of their populations with a high school education.

In St. Joseph, 65.5 per cent of the men and 63 per cent of the women had high school diplomas. The figures for Niles were 58.7 per cent of the men and 54 per cent of the women. In Berrien county, 52 per cent of both groups had high school educations.

Other social and economic information compiled by the Census Bureau:

—Median family income was: Benton Harbor, $7,422; Niles,

$10,621; St. Joseph, $11,255; Berrien county, $10,056; Cass county, $9,781; and Van Buren county, $8,735.

—Families headed by women: Benton Harbor, 25 per cent; St. Joseph, 12 per cent; and Niles, 11 per cent.

—Percentage of urban residents: United States, 73 per cent; Michigan, 73 per cent; Berrien county, 43 per cent; Cass county, 20 per cent; and Van Buren county, 21 per cent.

—Families earning more than $15,000: Michigan, 26 per cent; Berrien county, 19 per cent; Cass county, 18 per cent; and Van Buren county, 15 per cent.

—Families earning less than $6,000: Michigan, 18.8 per cent; Berrien county, 22 per cent; Cass county, 23 per cent; and Van Buren county, 29 per cent.

Farm Fire Burns Grass In Benton

A fire at the J.P. Harris farm, Kerlikowski road, Benton township, scorched four acres of grass Tuesday at 4:30 p.m., township firemen reported. Firemen said the fire was sparked from trash burning in a container.

Children playing with matches caused another grass fire Tuesday afternoon at the John Glowack home residence, 425 North Euclid, township firemen said. A small section of grass and some trash were extinguished by firemen.

Eau Claire is dependent on oil to heat the elementary school and has a verbal commitment, according to Supt. Donald McAlvey.

Special State Award

SJ Mental Health Center Is Honored For Program

Michigan Department of Mental Health has presented a special merit award to the Preschool Treatment Program conducted at Riverwood Community Mental Health Center, St. Joseph.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bell, founder and director of the program, will deliver a report on the program Thursday at Ann Arbor at a meeting of the Michigan Society for Mental Health and the Michigan Community Mental Health Services board.

Mrs. Bell explained that Preschool Treatment Program (PTP) is a daily group treatment program for emotionally disturbed, socially maladjusted and minimally brain damaged children designed to treat both mild and severe emotional problems.

The extremes of the program she said offers short term help to those children and parents who can profit from alternate methods of behaving and adjusting. At the other end of the program the PTP staff can offer intensive treatment to severely disturbed youngsters as soon as the behavior program can be identified.

PTP also offers a controlled setting in which preschool children who present a puzzling diagnostic impression can be observed and evaluated over a period of time.

Selection of staff is one of the most important steps in getting the program underway. One quality, she said, is for every staff member to have a hopeful expectancy that children can and do have the capacity to improve their functioning. If we lack hope, she said, "we communicate this negative feeling to children. We would like to see each child protected from the poison of pessimism, at least for the two hours that the child spends in school daily."

The program was started two years ago. Referrals are made by various agencies including the Benton Harbor pre-school program; Twin City Child Care Center; Lakeshore Cooperative Nursery; the YWCA nursery and various church nursery schools.

Berrien Colleges May Not Be Too Snug This Winter

BY JIM SHANAHAN
BH City Editor

School district officials in north Berrien county generally believe they'll be able to keep classrooms warm this winter, but the situation isn't so snug at the area's two colleges.

Andrews university and Lake Michigan college have natural gas heat with interruptible service. In the coldest days of winter when fuel demands are high, the gas is cut off for those with interruptible service.

Gene Lewis, manager of the Michigan Gas Utilities, Benton Harbor district, said Andrews and LMC are the only schools in his district with interruptible service. The others have a "firm" service agreement.

"Interruptible service clauses have been in effect for years but only recently have come to public attention because of the energy crisis," Lewis explained.

Interruptible service, used by many industries, means lower natural gas rates and using a substitute fuel when gas is cut off.

The State Board of Education has said that school districts burning oil may have difficulty getting adequate supplies, particularly those with interruptible gas service that substitute with oil. The board wants the federal voluntary fuel allocation changed to mandatory to avoid what it fears will be closings in some districts in the state this winter.

Districts with non-interruptible gas service aren't worrying and neither are those which have buildings heated by electricity.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. reports 14 elementary and junior high schools, totaling 365,000 square feet, are heated electrically in the area. Five high schools — River Valley, Michigan Lutheran, Bangor and Bridgman — also are completely electrically heated.

John Kriley, physical plant manager at Andrews, said: "We have no firm commitments at all. Past suppliers say they will give us what we had before, but that's only 3 to 4 days. A REAL HARD WINTER AND WE COULD BE IN REAL TROUBLE."

Robert Van Arkel, director of physical plant at Lake Michigan college, said the school has a verbal commitment for oil and "we anticipate a long shutdown without gas."

Of eight north Berrien school districts surveyed by this newspaper, four rely on oil in varying degrees.

School districts burning oil didn't get bids for this year only promises. And the price will be higher for what they get.

About one-third of the Benton Harbor district's 65 buildings are heated by oil. But oil warms the most square footage — senior high, the junior highs. Edward Troffer, director of buildings and grounds, says the district has a commitment for oil and doesn't foresee any problem. If one arises, he believes it will be handled by allocation.

Jon Schuster, assistant superintendent at Berrien Springs, says he's heard "promises, promises." But Schuster says he's holding to a belief the high school will have oil in the coldest days of winter.

Three Coloma elementary schools and storage areas are heated by oil for which the district has a verbal agreement to get "basically what we had last year and hopefully what we need," according to Ronald Clark, administrative assistant.

Eau Claire is dependent on oil to heat the elementary school and has a verbal commitment, according to Supt. Donald McAlvey.

All St. Joseph schools are gas-heated with the exception of Upton junior high and an addition to senior high both electric.

Dennis Percy, business manager, said years ago the district had considered interruptible service to get a lower gas rate, but expense of putting in oil burners and tanks appeared more than the rate advantage.

Heroism Earns TV Series Role

A former St. Joseph resident, Herbert H. Wolf, 26, will represent a Hawaiian ambulance service on the television series, "Hawaii 5-0."

HERBERT H. WOLF
On HAWAII 5-0

Wolf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund (Ed) Wolf of 1404 Lewis, St. Joseph, and a 1965 St. Joseph High school graduate, spent four years in the U. S. Marines before joining Physician's Ambulance Service, Inc. a year ago.

Wolf and a fellow worker, John Glassburner, will perform their normal duties of administering emergency medical care in sequences where ambulance service is required.

Lawrence R. Walter, President of Physician's Ambulance Service, reported Wolf and Glassburner, after a recent plane crash on the islands, without regard for their own safety, approached the stricken craft and administered emergency treatment to the seriously injured passengers and removed them from the reef to waiting ambulances.

NAACP Praises BH Men

Two citizens credited by Benton Harbor police for the apprehension last Friday of a suspect in a purse theft were saluted by the Twin Cities Area branch NAACP, and also will receive certificates of appreciation from the Benton Harbor city commission.

They are, Napoleon Lark, 46, of 1176 Broadway, and William Beecham, 29, of 516 Empire, both Benton Harbor. Police said they chased the suspect from a bar on Territorial road and flushed him from underneath a porch several blocks away. The purse was retrieved, officers stated.

The city commission is expected to make its presentation at next Monday's meeting. The NAACP salute was in the form of a letter, signed by Branch President Hershel McKenzie and read at last Monday's commission session. On crime, the letter also offered five suggestions for combating crime:

—Create an "Operation Eagle Eye," a vigil by citizens in every block, who keep an eye on their neighbors' homes to alert police to possible burglaries.

—Keep car and garage doors locked.

—Don't keep cash in the home and don't carry large amounts of money on your person. Use checks whenever possible.

—When seeing suspicious activities, obtain details, such as color of clothing, appearance of suspects, make and color of cars and license plate numbers.

—If victimized by crime, cooperate with police by providing necessary information, signing complaints and testifying in court.

Dystrophy March To Be Held First 2 Weeks Of November

The Southwestern Michigan chapter of Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America will hold its 20th annual march for muscular dystrophy during the first two weeks of November.

Robert L. Hickman, chapter president, said about 60 fire departments and other civic organizations will participate in marches, but will conduct their own on separate dates.

No goal has been set, he said, but noted $456,180 has been raised since the chapter's first drive. Most of the money goes to research and patient care.

The local chapter furnishes wheelchairs, beds, physical therapy, and other services to some 61 local patients. The November march will concentrate on Berrien, Cass, Van Buren, and Allegan counties.

Historic Log House Is Moving To New Site

MOVING DAY NEARS: Log house, known as the Murdock house and reported built in 1830 at Berrien Springs, is expected to be moved in about two weeks to site of former Berrien county courthouse, Berrien Springs. House is located near Kephart road and surrounded by new homes. (Staff photos)

Murdock Home Will Be Relocated Behind Old Berrien Courthouse

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Andrew Jackson, the first American president to be born in a log cabin, was in office when the two-story Murdock log house was built here 143 years ago.

Times have changed since

Chase Follows

Bank Robbery

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Police said four men held up a West Bloomfield Twp. bank Tuesday, seized a young girl hostage and led police on a chase over Detroit-area freeways before releasing the girl.

Police said one of the suspects was shot in the leg and arrested but the three other suspects escaped.

The unidentified young girl wasn't harmed, according to police, who also were unsure of the amount of money stolen.

Jackson's terms from 1829 to 1837, and the same holds true for the Murdock house, built in 1830.

The Murdock house, built by Francis Murdock, looks out of place today, surrounded by modern homes off Cherry drive, near Kephart road, about a half-mile east of US-31.

All this should change within two weeks when the structure is moved, right to the last hand-hewn log, to a more appropriate location, behind the former Berrien county courthouse, on US-31.

The relocation plans were reported by the Berrien County Historical Commission, Inc., spearheading the effort. This organization also is engaged in restoration of the old courthouse here.

When relocated, the Murdock house should appear more natural, as well as historic. Its neighboring courthouse building was built in 1839, just nine years after the Murdock house. The rear portion of the courthouse site is off Kimmel street, named for George Kimmel. He was one of the first settlers of Berrien Springs village, and also was the father-in-law of Francis Murdock.

The historical commission reported on the house moving venture.

It will be done by a South Bend, Ind., firm. The cost was financed by grants of $2,500, each, voted by Berrien Springs village and Oronoko township, from federal revenue sharing money. The historical commission put in another $750, and will keep the house secured until more funds can be raised for restoration.

The commission expects the house to become a state historic landmark. William Lowery, historic sites specialist of the Michigan Department of State, said that even though the house will not be on its original site, it should still be eligible for placement on the National Register of Historic Places.

Lowery has urged the relocation to preserve the structure, now considered an eye-sore and frequently vandalized. Lowery identifies the house as the oldest two-story log house in the state and oldest log structure in the Lower Peninsula. He said there are three other structures known to be older but none of logs. They are the Hunter house at Birmingham, 1822; the Anderson trading post, Monroe, 1800; and the Evans house, Tecumseh, 1826.

The oldest building in Michigan is reported to be the stone officers' quarters, built in 1780 on Mackinac Island.

The Murdock house now is owned by Loyal Oliver and Dr. Wilson Trickett of Berrien Springs. Both are praised by the historical commission for efforts in aiding relocation.

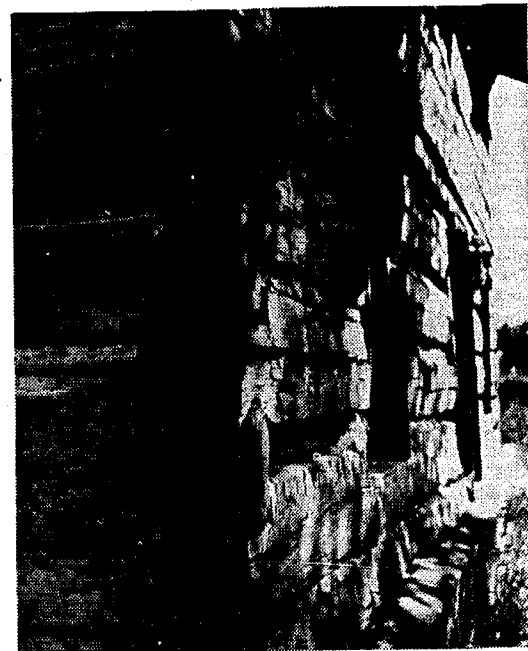

The Murdock house was forgotten with time until 1968, when a large farm house was being torn down. The hand hewn logs suddenly appeared, as wood siding was ripped away. Historians then went to work and found that the log house was incorporated as a rear wing on the farm house, and covered with siding.

It then was found that Murdock built the house on 120 acres, given him by his father-in-law. Murdock came here from Bedford, Pa. He had a law practice and also engaged in farming, until moving to California in 1835. A son of Murdock became a Berrien county clerk and was a Berrien Springs newspaperman.

The old courthouse location is owned by Berrien county and leased to the historical commission, a non-profit corporation.

HAND-HEWN: Before the days of the power tools, early settlers worked with ax, and hand saw to build homes in the wilderness. These corner joints on Murdock house have resisted elements for nearly century and a half.

'NEW' HOME SITE: Historic Murdock house will get a new location behind Berrien county's 1839 courthouse at Berrien Springs.

Foundation is under construction for Murdock house which is called oldest two-story log house in the state.

Another Fifth District Judge Needed To Avert Court 'Crisis'

BY BRANDON BROWN
Staff Writer

Berrien county is overdue for a fifth Fifth district judge, according to Presiding Judge John T. Hammond, and he asked key county commissioners Tuesday to help him get it.

"We're facing what ... is beginning to look like a crisis and you people should know about it," he told five county commissioners, the county coordinator, sheriff and prosecutor.

District court took in 39,186 cases in 1971 and disposed of more than that number, took in 46,228 last year and wound up with a backlog of 2,246, Judge Hammond said.

For the first half of 1973, the court saw 24,983 cases and the backlog stood at 1,942 or 27 per cent higher than first-half 1972, he said.

Prosecutor Ronald J. Taylor, who sometimes is at odds with Judge Hammond, agreed.

The backlog is "fouling us up fearfully" and also is a burden to the police and prosecutor's office, Judge Hammond said. It leaves defendants walking the streets who should have their cases disposed of promptly, he said.

Relief won't be immediate, however.

Judge Hammond explained both houses of the state legislature would have to amend the law giving Berrien four district judges. The fifth—by law—couldn't be elected until November, 1974, nor take his seat until Jan. 1, 1975.

Fifth district's caseload-per-judge was 19 per cent above the state average for 1972, and nearly double the average in felony preliminary examinations, Judge Hammond said.

The caseload keeps going up because of "more crime, more police and more prosecutors," he said.

Prosecutor Taylor corroborated Judge Hammond, saying his office has handled 20.5 per cent more felony cases the first eight months of 1973 compared to the year before. The 1972 felony caseload was 1,375, and 1,600 are expected for 1973, Taylor said.

The backlog results in less-than-ideal justice, Judge Hammond indicated.

Cases drag on and "get stale" when witnesses forget, die or disappear.

"A stale case ... results in an assistant prosecutor doing the very best thing he can, going up to the defense attorney and saying, 'I'll give you a deal on attempted....'"

In 1972, about 8 per cent of

JOHN T. HAMMOND
Berrien district judge

district court's caseload was civil. The remainder, in the "criminal" category, includes felonies, misdemeanors, traffic and municipal ordinance violations.

County commissioners at Tuesday's meeting in the courthouse at St. Joseph asked a few penetrating questions. At least one left the meeting indicating he was still skeptical.

U.S. 131 Extended

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The opening of a 16.7 mile-section of U.S. 131 north of Grand Rapids Sept. 21 will mean that Michigan's freeway system will pass the 1,500-mile mark.

The project goes north from the present U.S. 131 terminus at Michigan 57 near Cedar Springs to Michigan 46 near Howard City.

Teachers Violating Law, Says Milliken

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gov. William Milliken said Tuesday he is surprised Michigan courts have not moved to end 28 teacher strikes in the state.

Milliken noted in a press conference that strikes by public employees are illegal, adding: "I'm frankly not in favor of the law being violated."

The law, however, provides no penalty for public employees who strike. About 559,000 students remain out of class, the governor said.

Two suits against strikes were filed in Oakland County Tuesday. School boards sought injunctions against striking teachers in the Lamphere and Farmington districts.

Lansing teachers are scheduled to meet with board of education representatives today in a show cause hearing on the board's request for a back-to-work injunction. Talks broke off there Tuesday night.

In a separate statement, Gov. Milliken encouraged teachers to continue working rather than resorting to strikes, noting that 20 state mediators are available to help settle disputes and that in some cases they are on standby, "waiting to be invited in by the disputing parties."

Milliken's warning did not stop teachers in the Van Buren school district in southern Wayne County from announcing they would begin a strike today.

However, teachers in the southwestern Michigan community of Constantine will begin working today, without a contract.

Strikes by members of the American Federation of Teachers have drawn the attention of national AFT President David Selden, who will be in the Detroit area today to join teachers on picket lines in Detroit, Harper Woods, Roseville, Lamphere, Highland Park, Hamtramck, Inkster and Taylor.

Expert On Blood To Address Red Cross At Annual Meeting

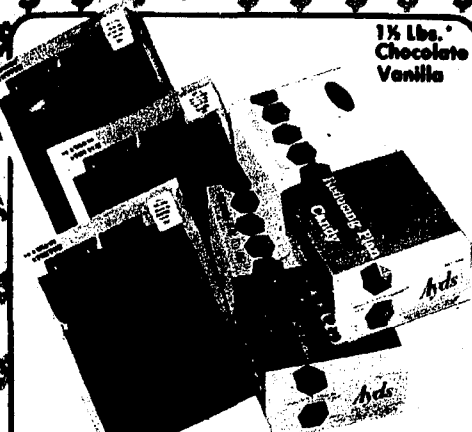

Dr. Garson Tishkoff, medical director of the regional Red Cross blood program, will be principal speaker at the 56th annual meeting of Berrien County Red Cross Thursday, Sept. 20.

Dr. Tishkoff, also professor of human medicine at Michigan State university, is a nationally known in hematology (study of blood and its diseases).

He is in charge of all medical activities and mobile units of the blood center, headquartered in Lansing. The Berrien Red Cross joined the regional blood program this year.

The dinner meeting will be at 6:30 p.m. at First Congregational United Church of Christ, St. Joseph. All persons who contributed directly to the chapter or through the United Fund are invited to attend. Reservations may be made by calling the Red Cross office in St. Joseph.
